

Love is wanting someone in your life entirely yet being willing to have them around none. This paradox allows for inclusivity without force and acknowledges the need to be fully in ones own life and committed to ones relation with themselves whereas anothers presence is a ~~need~~ ^{opportunity} to share the love ~~to~~ we have practiced experiencing ourself.

